THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1898.

ELMER J. CONDIT, Editor.

A local dispatch bar writes from Vienna that 25,000 persons in this city are out of employment.

The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press writes as follows about a man whom many Republicans would like to see in the United States Senate:

"Reed is the one Republican in Congress who has never buckled down to Boss Hanna. On the contrary, he has gone out of his way to give him the opportunity to handle pie. It all came about in connection with the appointment of a postmaster to succeed Postmaster Holmes, of Saco, Me. Reed had asked for one of his constituents. Instead of the appointment he got a letter from Hanna, saying that the President had decided to appoint Captain Milliken, of Lewiston, Me. That was all. Reed wrote back that he was surprised at the action of the President, as he had supposed that the matter was entirely in his hands. He added that he would be pleased to have a vote taken at any time upon any one he might agree upon.

"Reed's letter was an explosive document. It declared that there was much excitement, which might culminate in serious disturbance. Administration officials who have knowledge of all the information in the possession of the Administration say that Reed's statement is practically unanimous that the rioters have not been suppressed, and that Blanco is powerless to put down the turbulent spirits who are inciting to violence the loyalists of Havana. He is in a house divided against itself, with no power to control the elements that would take advantage of any serious disturbance.

"Blanco has not even his own troops with him. Their officers sympathize with the demonstration against the autonomist government, and some of these very officers have been the leaders of the mobs that attacked the offices of the autonomist newspapers. How, then, it is argued, can Blanco rely upon his ability to suppress such elements as these?

"It is pointed out that no mention has been made in the public dispatches about the arrest of any Spanish officers. That would be the first step in any Spanish coup d'etat. The fact that there is no mention of such arrests is taken to indicate that the Spanish officers are not disposed to take any initiative in the matter. That Blanco would quite likely be followed by the Spanish people in the event of a coup d'etat is believed by the Administration officials who have been watching the course of affairs in Cuba with the greatest interest.

"The Havana Volunteers, still chafing under the order of the Queen Regent to the contrary, will take part in the disorder as a matter of course. 'And if they do,' said an official, 'the end of Spain's rule in Cuba will be in sight.' It is believed that the arrival of the battleship Maine and the cruiser Detroit are being held at Key West ready for departure for Havana in case one of these vessels will be sent to the scene of trouble. It is said that the Navy Department has not yet determined which vessel is ready for the duty.

"Consul General Lee will the other American citizens in the city were in danger. President McKinley has been in constant communication with General Lee and has placed a large and powerful fleet of war vessels at his disposal. Any three of the cruisers, it is said, can easily annihilate the entire Spanish navy. The nearest is now at Key West, only a few hours' sail from Havana. General Lee has been directed by the President to summon these war ships to his assistance if the Government of Spain continues the Cuban policy of starving the people by starving children.

MANY Democrats in Congress favor the bill to erect on the shores of Niagara Falls a monument to Grover Cleveland. Opinions from start to finish. Among them is Representative De Armond, of Missouri, who said on the subject: "We ought to be aggressive. We want to force the fighting. We ought to lose no time in exposing the hypocrisy in Cleveland or our party, regardless of nothing to being accused."

MAJOR SYMONS, Chief U. S. Engineer Corps, has completed his survey of the improvement of the channel from the Atlantic seaboard to the Great Lakes. The cost of the improvement, which is practically assured, and which he estimated most conservatively at not to exceed one million dollars, is considerable. The depth of the channel is to be at least twenty feet, which will admit of very large vessels. The route considered is by the Hudson river to the Niagara river, and thence to the Lakes. Not much is to be done at the locks, but much work is to be done in deepening the channel.

SENATOR TELLER'S speech in the Senate was a manly declaration of principles. The various newspaper stories, alleging that the Silver men in Congress have no proper conception of the financial question, and are trying to force it to the front for the purpose of making a breach between Secretary Gage, Mr. Teller said that if the two were not in perfect harmony on this question Mr. Gage would not remain in the Cabinet an hour. He added that the Republican party of to-day is fully committed to the gold standard. He then gave utterance to the following sentiment, which is the key-note of the Republican party from start to finish: "The Republican party has been in power since the civil war, and it has been in power because it has been the party of the people. It has always been the party of progress. It has always been the party of the future. It has always been the party of the present. It has always been the party of the past. It has always been the party of the present. It has always been the party of the future

Disease weaves its web around people a little at a time. They are not danger-ously ill all at once. The beginnings of illness are mere trifles. First a little indigestion, perhaps; or headaches; or an occasional bilious turn. It is hard to realize how you are being tangled up in the strands of sickness until you are fairly caught.

Nearly all serious illnesses begin with some stomach or liver trouble, or with a costive condition of the bowels. These functions have got to be put in good condition [illegible] it is these organs from the disease [illegible] It is some Arbitrus, and it is because Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery acts directly upon the liver and digestive organs that it has such a marvelous effect upon all diseases of malnutrition.

It gives the digestive system power to assimilate nourishment and make good blood; it drives out bilious poisons; it creates the red, vitalizing, life-giving corpuscle in the circulation; and builds up the weak and wasted places in every corner of the constitution.

Taken in conjunction with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, it relieves obstinate constipation and keeps the bowels in a perfectly natural condition.

Mrs. Ella Howell, of Derby, Perry Co., Ind., writes: "In the year of 1892 I was taken with stomach trouble—nervous dyspepsia. There was a coldness in my stomach, and a weight which seemed like a rock. Everything that I ate gave me great pain; I had a burning sensation; my food was gnelled across my stomach; had a pidge around my right side, and in a short time I was bloated. I was treated by three of our best physicians but got no relief. Then Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was recommended to me and I got it and commenced the use of it. I began to see a change for the better. I was so weak, I could not walk across the room without assistance. I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and one bottle of the Pleasant Pellets. I began to improve very fast after the use of a few bottles. The physicians who attended me said my disease was leading into consumption. I had quite a [illegible] I was [illegible] I did [illegible] and I firmly believe my cure is permanent."

A HOUSEHOLD PRAYER.

From a sluggish, sinful, dullness wife,
A heather who doesn't care
Whether she tidily wears or gowns
Or rarely combs her hair,
From a husband who can't see or know
How dirty tracks in the floors,
From a husband who can't see or know
Put the little ones to chores,
Good Lord, deliver us!

From a lazy man, a shiftless man,
A thoughtless boy or girl,
Men than the world itself upside down
With a whirl and a twist and a curl,
From such is the misery many mess—
As we go on our weary way—
Times we have got to endure or face—
Forever, "Let us pray."
Good Lord, deliver us!

TAKEN BY A GIRL.

BY C. H. LEWIS.

The first time I had speech with General Grant, though seeing him on a dozen occasions before, was about two weeks previous to his move against Lee in what is known as the Wilderness campaign. He had settled his plans in a general way, but wished more details and particulars, and of the 56 scouts and spies ordered to report at headquarters I was one. Each in turn as he arrived was taken to the general's tent for instructions. There were more often pairs or parties of two or three of scouts after he had personally posted himself, but now and then General Grant insisted on talking with each man in person.

On this occasion he left the last privately instructed each man. Ten of the 56 were to go as spies, the remainder as scouts. I had been put down among the latter, to my great satisfaction. Not that I would have hesitated to undertake any of the perils that the enemy's camp and right, the Negro, but soldiers did not take to spy work. No army could get along without them, and as a rule they are the bravest men, but spy work has always been and always will be considered degrading. Any scout or spy taken down uniform and is provided with a pass and in case of capture is treated as a prisoner of war.

You will leave camp as soon as it is dark and [illegible] the people [illegible] eral as he [illegible] the map on the table before him. "When you reach this crossroad, turn to the left. At the next turn to the right. Go to the north [illegible] and camp as you [illegible] Now, this is only my plan. You may be required [illegible] Should you be compelled to [illegible] Secret service [illegible] Should you be [illegible] Remember [illegible] Keep your eyes open and your ears open, and you will learn [illegible] Good luck to you."

I was not to report to [illegible] all the incidents of the next two days, though all were interesting and in some of them full of peril, so far as I could [illegible] Lee was not being [illegible] though he was thinking [illegible] I moved [illegible] as the wagon [illegible] was [illegible] and evidently on the alert for any movement on the part of Grant's army. I had secured all the information I could [illegible] under the circumstances and had set out on my return when I had a narrow escape from capture and death. And I owe my life, or, at least, my liberty, to a girl.

I was [illegible] a cross-roads [illegible] when I saw a [illegible] of Confederate cavalry coming [illegible] I did the best I could [illegible] after me before the enemy [illegible] them cut my course [illegible] to get through my lines and [illegible] and [illegible] around [illegible] and [illegible] they did not [illegible] I know that a good [illegible] would [illegible] rode [illegible] the middle [illegible] of a [illegible] and a farm-house. I found a [illegible] tree in a [illegible] and [illegible] the next two hours I [illegible] of interest, but [illegible] to escape [illegible] Finally I [illegible] went to sleep [illegible] the place was deserted, and at length I decided to make a move [illegible] turned out to be a very foolish one.

I had passed the two [illegible] the woods [illegible] a walk of three [illegible] and was [illegible] and [illegible] I should find water at the mill something to eat perhaps and the floor would do me for a bed. [illegible] I caught a few hours sleep.

[illegible] another [illegible] and I left my [illegible] and he [illegible] me to the house. The front door stood partly open, and that was one of my reasons for believing the place deserted. As I reached the door I [illegible] and saw furniture and [illegible] that the people must have left in a hurry. I was hesitating what to do when the door was pulled wide open and a girl about 18 years old stood before me. She [illegible] and hands and face were not very clean, but her eyes shone with intelligence, and her hair was [illegible]

"What do you want," she asked after we had surveyed each other for a minute.

"I want something to eat and will pay you for it," I replied.

"Father is up, and I'm all alone, and you are a Yankee."

"Well, what of it?"

She looked me over again from head to foot and no doubt wondered how I got there and what my errand was. I leaned against the door and smiled at her, but the pleasant look left her face and her lips tightened as if she had come to some decision concerning about something.

"Perhaps she were going to turn me away, but after a while she slowly said:

"You will find a gourd at the well, and I will get you something to eat."

I went to the well and satisfied my thirst, and when I returned I had a seat on the rude table in the kitchen while she [illegible] She got [illegible] and [illegible] and a [illegible] and [illegible] corn [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] and
